Terms of Service

By submitting this application form, the applicant hereby agrees to freely and voluntarily authorise the Fiqh Council Birmingham (FCB) to arbitrate in this Nikah according to its procedures for Islamic marital arbitration and hereby agrees to abide by the decision of the FCB accordingly. It is the policy of FCB that every application follows a due procedure involving an assessment of the case having consulted all concerned parties. To ensure this, the FCB makes all reasonable effort to communicate with all parties. Based on this assessment, the Council's independent panel of scholars will arbitrate, relying upon the merits and validity of the case. The Council reserves the right to accept or refuse in any application per its discretion.

If an application is accepted, the Fiqh Council Birmingham (FCB) makes will make its decision based on the teachings of the Islamic faith and takes no responsibility for any financial or other loss which may accrue to the parties involved. In the case the FCB dissolves a Nikah, it is only according to the Islamic faith. For a civil law divorce, a solicitor should be consulted. It is the FCB policy that we advise all parties who seek the Council's advice in Islamic marital mediation and arbitration, that any violent and or criminal incidents are referred to the relevant legal authorities such as the police and social services. Please refer to the FCB website for full terms and conditions of service and further information on FCB procedures for Islamic Marital Arbitration.
